A Tribute to the Late Dr. Francis Roy University Arizona Dean Emeritus

Dr. Francis A. Roy, 62, Dean Emeritus of the University of Arizona College of Liberal Arts died recently at Tuscon Medical Center.

Dr. Roy, who retired last February, become dean of the college in 1951. He succeeded Dr. Richard A. Harvill when Harvill became UA president.

Dr. Roy was born in Cambridge, Mass., was reared in Nova Scotia. He graduated from Saint Anne College, Nova Scotia in 1926, received a license in letters from the University of Wisconsin in 1934.

His study in France was funded by a French Ministry of Foreign Affairs Fellowship and he won his license in letters in French, competing with students from that country.

He joined the University of Arizona staff as an instructor in French in 1934.

"One must use superlatives in commenting on the qualities of Francis Roy's educational services," Harvill said.

"His dedicated and distinguished service brought him national recognition and many opportunities in other universities. Arizona is indeed fortunate that he continued serving this institution."

Dr. Roy retired as dean Feb. 1, after 19 years of service which saw the college of liberal arts grow from 1,800 students and a single Ph. D. program to 8,200 students and 16 doctoral degree courses.

He was named outstanding member of the UA faculty in 1961 and, in March, was presented with a $1,500 Distinguished Educator Award by the University of Arizona Foundation.

On sabbatical leave during the spring semester, Dr. Roy had intended to return to the faculty this fall in the Department of Romance Languages.

He married the former Dorothy Thomas in Phoenix in 1935. She died in 1964. The couple had three children.

He later remarried the former Suzanne Sprinkle, his widow.

Other survivors include a son, Thomas O. Roy, of Tucson, and two daughters, Cathrine Elizabeth Johnson, of Los Angeles and Mary Frances Kaldenbaugh, of Houston.

(The late Dr. Francis Roy was a son of the late Benjamin Roy, and a brother of the late Mrs. Thomas LeBlanc; West Arichat: also the late Leo Roy and Arthur Roy. He is survived by four sisters: Laura, Blanche, Beatrice and Anna, all married in the U.S.; also one brother, John in Newton Centre, Mass.

Rudolph LeBlanc of West Arichat, is a nephew of the deceased gentleman, who distinguished himself in the field of education and whose service has been so amply recognized by the University of Arizona, as well as by the nation. The following editorial appeared in an American newspaper previous to his death, stating hopefully that Fran Roy would accept it as a public testimony of the community's regard for him:—

"There was considerable emotion in President Richard A. Harvill's manner when he announced the retirement of Dean Francis A. Roy of the Universiy of Arizona College of Liberal Arts. There well should have been, for the two men came to the University 35 years ago and have been firm friends in the intervening years, as well as mutually-respected fellow-workers in the field of education ell as mutually-respected fellow-

"The motions fate makes toward placing people in top positions often are cause for reflection. Both Dr. Harvill and Dr. Roy are of an ability and a nature so that it will not annoy either for a truth to be stated — Dr. Roy, under a slightly differing set of circumstances, might be president of the University and Dr. Harvill its Liberal Arts dean.

"It is a compliment to both men that they have worked so well together and maintained such a fine friendship across what have been critical, growing years, during which the University to which they have devoted their talents has grown from roughly 3,000 students to about 25,000.

"It is no secret that Dr. Roy's resignation was forced by his need to give prime attention to his health. In that venture, important not only to him and his family but his friends, he is wished God-speed."

Fran Roy is beyond reach of praise now. But he was a brilliant scholar, a talented administrator and a loyal and good friend. Let his soul rest in pece.

ARTHUR HENRY MILLER

One of our oldest residents of West Arichat, Arthur Henry Miller 96 passed away recently. The late Mr. Miller had been confined to his home for the past nineteen years and his cheerful and kindly disposition will be greatly missed by his family and neighbors.

He is survived by his wife the former Catherine Covin; three daughters and one son: Blanche, (Mrs. Raymond Forgeron); Hattie, (Mrs. Bernard Marchand); Ida and Arthur at home.

The funeral mass was held at the Immaculate Conception Church of which he was a devout member. Rev. Father Doucet was the celebrant and also officiated at the graveside.

C. A. Boucher was in charge of funeral arrangements.

We extend sympathy to the bereaved widow and family in the loss of a devouted husband and father.

A Short Holiday Trip

We recently took a short holiday trip to Springhill and Moncton, N. B.

Before returning home, we had the pleasure of accompanying our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dickie, on a tour of the beautiful Fundy Trail from Parrsboro to Advocate. This route is along the coast and although not quite as elevated reminds one of the Cabot Trail in Cape Breton.

We spent a day in the City of Moncton where we again accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Dickie, their daughter, Mrs. Shirley MacCallum, R. N., and her charming little daughter, Loralyn. We visited several shopping centres and the City in general is becoming a fast, growing Maritime metropolitan area.

While at Moncton, we were delighted with a visit to the Mother General Convent, where we renewed acquaintances with former Rev. Sisters from Arichat and teachers who served at the Arichat Academy some years ago.

On entering the spacious and modern Convent, we enquired at the Information desk to see the Sisters in Residence from Richmond County, we were taken to a reception room and soon the following Sisters made their appearance; Rev. Sister Mary Boucher, a daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Simon Boucher of Arichat; Rev. Sister Eliza Goyetche, a daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. John Goyetche, Arichat; Rev. Sister Mary Catherine Gagnon, a daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Gagnon of Arichat; Rev. Sister Lillian Vigneau, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Vigneau of Arichat; Rev. Sister Annie Sampson (Mother Cecile) of River Bourgeois; Rev. Sister Mary Agnes MacDonald of Point Tupper and Rev. Sister Fulbert, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boudreau of Petit de Grat.

Much could be written about the foregoing Sisters, several of whom served in England and France.

A most delightful conversation followed and many pleasant memories, both past and present were discussed. Although partly retired, they informed us that they engage in teaching and many oher ser- in teaching and many other ser- the Order of Notre Dame.

In bidding the Rev. Sisters farewell, we were happy to note that all were in good health and we promised to visit the Convent again at some future date.

En-route to Springhill, we visited our daughter and son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith McCabe at Merigomish. Both Keith and Laura are employees of the Maritime Tel. and Tel. at New Glasgow. We also had the pleasure of visiting Mrs. Hilda Latimer and her eldest daughter (Beulah), Mrs. MacKenzie of Victoria, B. C., who had been visiting her mother for several weeks. We were happy to learn that Hilda's health is much improved after suffering a slight heart attack recently.

After crossing the new Causeway linking New Glasgow with Pictou, we branched off on the Sunrise Trail and visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack MacCarthy at Three Brooks and were happy to see both Jack and Mary, where we stayed for a short visit.

We took the Sunrise Trail route to Springhill and at Oxford called on our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Vic Merchant, at the Oxford Journal Office. We also met their son, Glenn, who is a valuable man in the composing and pressroom departments of the plant.

Vic like ourselves have been associated with the printing industry for many years and were initiated into the craft by our late respective fathers both of whom were close friends. The family traditions in the craft are quite similar in our family as in the Marchant family. It was also nice seeing Vic's wife who spends part of her time at the office of the plant. She told us that her married daughter and son in-law, spent the past summer at Louisbourg doing research work at the Fortress, one of the largest restoration projects in North America.

On our return to Cape Breton we took the Wenworth Valley route and here the highway has been rebuilt since our last visit. At Wentworth, winter sports have been much in evidence during the past few years and the ski runs on the mountains and cable lifts can be seen from the highway. A large winter resort looks after the needs of skiing enthusiasts and the runs are well patronized by both young and old more especially over the week-ends.

ONE OF CANADA'S OLDEST STEAMERS ON DISPLAY

Although retired last winter, CSS Acadia, the oldest coal-burning vessel on the east coast and one of Canada's oldest, is still performing yeoman service tied to the Bedford Institute jetty in Dartmouth, N. S.

In spite of her inactivity she has become for visitors a living example of Canada's marine history, a replica of a past era the age of the steam vessel. A visit to the 1,000-ton Acadia has become a must for the many tourists and visitors on the summer tours at the Bedford Institute (Atlantic Oceanographic and Marine Ecology Laboratories). They are conducted weekdays on the hour, 10 am—noon—3:30 pm.

Built at Newcastle on Tyne, England, in 1913, Acadia was the oldest ship in the fleet of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources' marine science branch. She was the first northern survey vessel of the Canadian Hydrographic Service now a division of the branch.

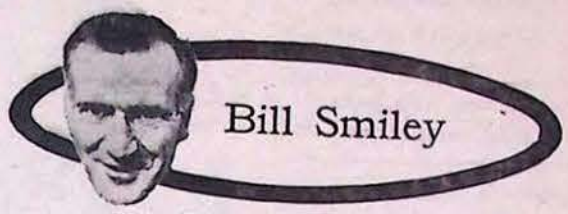

Acadia not only saw wartime service (patrol vessel 1916-19; training ship 1939-45) but she survived the holocaust of the Halifax Explosion. She and her sister ship, Cartier, were in the harbour when Mont Blanc and Imo collided.

She is also a veteran of numerous rescue missions. Among them the evacuation of 600 persons from fires on Newfoundland's east coast communities threatened by forest in 1961.

Since her commission she was based at Pictou, N. S., and with her ten hydrographers and 50 ship's company has chartered routes from ice-infested Hudson Bay and Hudson Strait to the waters off southern Nova Scotia.

In 1915 she was one of the first Canadian ships engaged in oceanographic research when she was used in a study of Canada's Atlantic herring fisheries. In fact, she became the second Canadian vessel to undertake oceanographic measurements missing the distinction of being the first by 15 days. During the winter of 1922-23 she was assigned the task of ice breaker to clear Bedford Basin's 18-inch thick ice.

The Acadia is a proud old ship and visitors are able to see her original machinery and fittings crafted from a bygone era her brass trimmings and lanterns, her teak and mahogany panelling richly mellowed by age and her original furnishings.

The good life

There's something basically piggish about man.

He wants to get his snout into that trough, and devil take the runt who can't wiggle his bum in there, because the landscape in front of him is one of solid bums, harder to break through than a cement wall.

When you look at the size of Canada, and then at the population figures, it's difficult to believe that Canadians feel they can't get at the trough, that many of them feel like the runt of the litter. Yet thousands do.

Many of them feel, as the old rural expression has it, that "they're sucking the hind tit." Tit is a short, but perfectly decent, synonym for teat. The hind one is the one the runt gets, if he gets any.

This is rather a long-winded prelude to my major proposition: That thousands of city-dwellers are desperate to get away from it all, out of the smog and the concrete canyons, into the wild green yonder.

For practical reasons, they must, in most cases, live in the city, or exist there. That's where they make a living, where their children will have the best schools, where their friends are. But they don't like it.

Obvious solution Buy a summer cottage. Many do.

But even there, one does not escape from the throngs, the cramped feeling. Cottages are, mainly, stuck cheek by jowl. Boats and motorcycles in summer, snowmobiles in winter, pollute the air with fumes and noise. Added hazards in winter are the roof breaking in under snow, and local hoodlums breaking in under booze.

Also, for many, the cost of a waterfront lot and cottage are simply out of reach. Have you tried to pick up a nicely-treed, sand-beach water lot lately? Figure on $50 a foot for anything decent. Add a cottage, drill a well, pay taxes and upkeep, and you have to be pretty well-heeled even to consider it.

Accordingly, many city denizens of modest means are buying a chunk of land right in the country, anything from 10 to 50 acres. In some areas within a couple of hours drive, one can still buy "land" for $50 an acre. Thus, instead of socking $5,000 into a 100-foot water lot, you can have your own ten-acre empire for $500.

European immigrants are particularly interested in such land, because they didn't have a hope of buying an acre at home, unless wealthy.

This land is usually sub-marmarginal, or worse. But there seems to be a basic instinct to own some land, even though it won't grow anything but rocks and Christmas trees. Just to be able to pace around and say: "This is mine. Nobody can t. it away from me." And the sheer delight of posting "No Trespassing" signs around your domain!

A man's home used to be his castle. Now it's his prison. But he can have an estate in the country.

It's an ideal set-up for a man with a young family. Preferably he sould be handy with tools. He can buy his chunk of junk and spend a couple of years just going up on weekends and vacations, tenting and clearing a hole in the scrub brush for his shack.

And if he's smart, it will be, at first, just that — a shack. Never mind the three bedrooms. Bang in some bunks. Never mind the big stone fireplace. Get a good wood stove.

Over the years, he can add to the place, until, eventually, he will have a snug retirement home No traffic problems. No pollution. No punks. No people. Small tax bills A place to putter, to meditate Sound silly? Maybe. But ing upon us, it makes more sense than taking on a huge mortgage at 10 per cent, which will be paid off eight years after you die.

Ideally, the property would have a small stream loaded with fat trout, a deer run, huge patches of wild berries. Realistically, it will be impossible to get water when you drill your well, the land will be infested by rattlesnakes or rodents, and smothered in nettles and poison oak. But we can't have everything.

I'm tempted myself. Any chuckling, gleaming-eyed farmer want to get rid of 50 acres of rock and swamp for $10 an acre

RURAL EVENING

The hush that hangs upon the hill,
Is broken by the piercing cry;
Of some lone prowler prone to kill,
Or else of hunger it must die.

Deep in the dark a golden light,
Flares out beyond the land and sea;
Where Venus at the fringe of night,
Burns low on God's Immensity.

BAKING BANTER by Suzanne

CARAMEL NUT BUNS

1/2 cup lukewarm water
1 tsp sugar
1 yeast cake
1/2 cup milk, scalded
1/4 cup shortening
1 tsp salt
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
3 cups sifted Dover all-purpose flour (approx.)
5 tbsp brown sugar
3 tbsp melted butter
1/3 cup walnuts or pecans

Filling:
4 tbsp butter
2/3 cup brown sugar
1 tsp cinnamon
1/1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1/2 cup choppeed raisins

Crumble yeast into water mixed with 1 tsp sugar. Let stand 5 minutes. Combine milk, shortening, salt, sugar and egg. Cool to lukewarm. Mix in yeast and enough Dover flour to make a stiff dough. Knead until smooth and elastic. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in volume. Punch down. Grease muffin pans well. Place in bottom of each muffin tin 1/2 tsp brown sugar, 1/2 tsp melted butter and several nutmeats. With greased rolling pin, roll out dough to a 9 x 15-inch rectangle. Spread with mixture of brown sugar, butter and cinnamon. Sprinkle with nuts and raisins. Roll dough up like jelly roll. Seal edge well. With sharp knife, slice into 18 pieces 3/4 to 1 inch thick. Place cut side up in muffin tins. Cover and let rise until doubled in volume. Bake at 375 degrees for 2 minutes. Turn out of pans immediately.
Yield: 18 rolls.

RECENT PATIENT
IN V. G. HOSPITAL

Byron S. Langley, a former Warden of the Municipality of Richmond was a recent patient in the V. G. Hospital, Halifax, and we understand that he has now returned to his home in Onslow, near Truro.

Byron made a trip to Arichat not too long ago and it was nice seeing him.

For many years Mr. Langley represented the Point Tupper District and served for several terms as Warden of the County, a position he filled in a very creditable manner.

Since his retirement, he resides in Onslow and occupies a new home there.

May Byron and his good wife, Irene, enjoy many years of happiness and we do trust he is now restored to his usual good health.

TO HAWKESBURY

On a recent visit to Port Hawkesbury, we called on Mr. and Mrs. Harold Oliver and family, who are now located in their beautiful home on Kennedy Street.

Harold, who underwent an operation at St. Martha's Hospital, during the early summer, is much improved in health and will be returning to duty at the N. S. Pulp Limited.

Councillor Oliver represented the Point Tupper district during the last term of Council and did not reoffer in October. James Noseworthy was elected by acclamation.

We thank both Harold and June for their kind hospitality and wish them every happiness in their new home.

FOUR OF FAMILY
OPERATED ON

In the past seven weeks four children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles LeBlanc of D'Escousse were operated on at different intervals during that period for appendicitis. The names of the children operated on are: James, Charlene, Roger and Vickey. Another son, Edwin was operated on for appendicitis in February, bringing the total to five during the year.

If an appendix infection was contagious, one would be lead to believe that an epidemic had visited the LeBlanc household, however, this is a factual story and we are happy to report that all five of the family are fully recovered.

Canada Savings Bonds are easy to buy for cash or on instalments, in amounts ranging from $50 up to $25,000.

Canada Savings Bonds are cold, hard cash—instantly. They can be redeemed anv time at their full face value plus earned interest.

Canada Savings Bonds are safe—backed by all the resources of Canada. They're a very special security.

New Canada Savings Bonds yield an average of 7¾% a year when held to maturity.

Each $100 Bond begins with $6.75 interest for the first year, pays $7.75 interest for each of the next three years, and then pays $8.00 interest for each of the last seven years.

On top of this you can earn interest on your interest. You can make each $100 grow to $227.50 in just eleven years.

That's why we say, Canada Savings Bonds are good today, better tomorrow; an investment that grows and grows.

BOOTH PLANT IN OPERATION

The Booth Fisheries Plant at Petit de Grat is now in operation after being idle for the past several months due to a strike of dragger fishermen. It now appears some understanding has been established between fishermen and management and it is hoped that it will be to the mutual benefit of all concerned.

One dragger has landed the first catch and we understand that others are expected during the week.

Much credit goes to the management and maintenance crews in putting the plant in readiness for processing operations.

TREATING BURN VICTIMS

A special bath to help hospital burn units treat their patients has been invented by a Scots engineer, Alex Campbell. Instead of the small tank most units have, he has designed a bath which floats the patient, so that he can be moved easily. The water temperature is kept steady and a constant flow of water down either side of the bath takes away burnt skin and dressings to a filter outlet at its foot, leaving the water in the centre quite motionless.

The BBC World Service radio magazine Scotland Today described Mr. Campbell's first experiments in the bath at his home, using hose pipes to work out his theories on turbulence. A wooden prototype was then made, and his family acted as guinea pigs. Early in the construction the problem of sterilisation arose. Bacteriologists had to be absolutely certain that this was adequate. The method finally arrived at was steam sterilisation of piping and the pump unit. The bath was also lined with a polythene envelope which could be removed and destroyed after each use.

Alex Campbell has now completed a full-scale stainless steel unit, currenty due for test under practical conditions in a large Scottish hospital.
